HOAGLAND'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore easily and speedily separated. It restrains the [illegible] so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed, so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves, and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

OREGON

ITS TRADE, CLIMATE, LANDS, TIMBER AND MINES, GAME, FRUITS, MARKETS, STOCK, WAGES, MAIL AND SHIPPING FACILITIES, CHURCHES, MANUFACTURES, COMMERCE AND TRADE, [illegible] INSTITUTIONS, TAXES, ETC.—MISCELLANEOUS USEFUL INFORMATION.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Dec. 2, 1869.

A goodly number of Oregonians have made the trip to and from the States east of the Mississippi—all the way to the Atlantic seaboard within the past year by the great overland railway, and in whatever else they differ as to what they have seen or heard in the various sections they have visited, they are all united in saying that in nothing was their pride of home more wounded, or their ideas of the geographical intelligence of their countrymen on that side more at fault than in matters of information concerning Oregon. Scarcely anywhere did any of them meet people who knew well the geographical location of this State, its notable features either as to natural resources or that which the labor and enterprise and skill of man has developed. Even in New England, so blessed for the enlightenment of its masses, almost nothing seems to be known of Oregon save it be apocryphal scraps derived from poets, or the very imperfect sketchings of that class of fashionable tourists who care more for the harmonious flow of their periods and the graceful rounding of periods in all they pretend to sketch than for facts, realities and the pains taking, earnest, intelligent description of the country through which they have passed. Theirs may well be termed "birds-eye views," inasmuch as the writers appear only to have skimmed over the land without ever alighting from the wing to mingle with the inhabitants, to learn of the trade, business and labor, the conditions, the resources and wants, and what has been done toward the development of the one or the supplying of the other. Yet New England forms no exception to the rule. North and South, East and West, the same want of information concerning Oregon was discovered. Even in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, from which States the great majority of the pioneer settlers of the wilds of Oregon emigrated, there appears to be quite as much ignorance of the country as in other parts, or from whence there has been little or no emigration hither.

In view of these condition of things on that side of the continent, perhaps it will not be deemed inappropriate, or labor lost, to here give, in such a way as the brief limits of a newspaper's columns will allow, some facts pertaining to Oregon in a general way.

Though sparsely populated the State presents throughout its whole extent, a wealth of resources not excelled by any in the Union. Oregon has great rivers, numerous smaller streams, extensive and exceedingly lovely valleys, vast undulating lands, mighty forests of trees, valuable for shipbuilding, for lumber and for fuel, and high mountains, here and there topped by gigantic peaks whose summits wear perpetual snow—as Bierstadt's "Mount Hood" grandly tells the world. She has rich mines of gold—placer and quartz, and also of iron and copper, and great coal beds—some already developed which have been profitably worked for ten years past. And so has she as fertile and prolific farming lands and as luxurious grazing fields as are known on the habitable globe.

To illustrate the surpassing richness of the soil, the product of her wheat alone in the past twenty years can be instanced. There are fields in the Willamette valley which have been sown with wheat almost continuously for this many years, and yet a failure of so little as a "half-crop" has never been known, and the average produce of these fields has been fully thirty five bushels to the acre. Other crops have succeeded as well, and at this day the same lands which have so constantly and abundantly rendered profit to their owners, seem as fresh and as fertile as though they had been just subjected to the plough and harrow. It is in wheat and oats that Oregon excels, yet excellent crops of barley, rye, and flax, good corn and tobacco, and superior hay can be raised in every portion of the State, and in the hardy fruits—apples, pears, plums, and cherries she has certainly no superior, if an equal, in any part of the United States. Superior pine, oak, ash, cedar, fir, maple, yew, and laurel, are among her most valued woods, and cottonwood and willow, juniper and tamarac, abound along her rivers, or in her wildest mountain lands.

No country can surpass, few, if any can compare with Oregon in the variety, the quality and the great abundance of wild game, whether winged, or quadruped, or of the finny tribes—of mountain and forest, of valley or prairie, or of tide or inland waters. Along the banks of the Willamette and the lower Columbia the sportsman can readily bag canvas back as fine as those noted fowl of the Chesapeake, and also throughout the interior, splendid mallard, teal, red bill, and wood duck, wild geese, curlew, grouse, pheasant, jack snipe, quail—and in Eastern Oregon prairie chicken and sage hens. The hunter can readily find black tail and other deer, elk, brown and black and cinnamon bear, jackass rabbits, hare, squirrels, and, for peltry, otter and beaver. The salmon and sturgeon of the Columbia river are noted among the most delicious of the species found in any part of the globe, while the brook and mountain trout, the salmon trout, the smelt, perch, and other varieties of small or pan fish, are of excellent quality, and are found in unequaled abundance.

The markets in every city and town throughout the State present a very tempting appearance. In meats there are—fat, tender and juicy beef, really superior in grain and flavor to most of the stall fed beef of the States east, excellent mutton, veal and lamb, and pork of that first quality which has won for Oregon hams the reputation of being the very best in the California market. In game can be seen, in the respective seasons, the wild game mentioned above, together with fine barnyard poultry. And in vegetables and fruits, an endless variety of every esculent, relish, and species for pickle, from potatoes to cranberries and from onions to horseradish, with luscious wild and cultivated strawberries and blackberries, raspberries, huckleberries, sarvis and thimble and salmon berries, wild and cultivated grapes, and such apples and pears as are rarely or never seen in the older States, besides peaches, quinces, plums, cherries and apricots, of good qualities.

The large and fine stock ranges of the Willamette, Yamhill, and Umpqua valleys, and of the Tualatin and Clatsop Plains, were in early years sorely subject to the ravages of jaguars (or panthers), wolves, and other destructive wild animals, but so thoroughly have they been hunted that it is very rarely sheep are now-a-days molested in the fold, and the horned cattle graze as free from danger as if under their owners' sheds.

Much attention is given to the breeding of thoroughbred and good blood stock in Oregon—horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs, and in the Eastern division of the State to the breeding of fine mules also. Noted sires and dams have been brought from Kentucky and other States to improve the already good native stock of horses, and from these have sprung splendid racers, fast trotters and roadsters, and carriage and draft and work horses of such quality as to command the highest prices in the horse markets of California and Nevada. Durham and other famous breeds of cattle have been brought from Illinois, New York and New Jersey; also the best breeds of Spanish and French Merinos, Cotswolds, Southdown and other celebrated or favorite sheep from Vermont, New York, England and Australia, for wool and mutton both, and White Cheshire, Essex and Berkshire hogs, are to be found throughout the State, imported direct from England or the East.

There are generally, very good roads in every section of the State, and nearly all are county and free roads. Toll gates, except in the region of the mines in Eastern Oregon, are rarely encountered, and at the few unfordable streams which are not bridged, the ferriage charges are restricted to low rates by the County Commissioners. The great highway which leads all the way from Portland to Sacramento, in California, a total of nearly 700 miles, of which quite half is in Oregon, and over which the daily four horse mail stages travel, has but one toll gate in this 700 and [illegible] miles. The character of the road can be pretty well estimated when it is known that during eight months of the year the whole distance through between Portland and Sacramento is made in five and a half days, and during the wet or winter season in from eight to ten days, as the weather happens to be more or less severe, by the daily mail stages. From almost every portion of every county to the county seat, or to the marketing towns there are regularly laid out roads kept in good repair by the district supervisors.

Building material is cheap all over the State, and readily obtained. Good brick can be made in almost every township, and the facilities for getting good timber are scarcely to be surpassed. Wages of mechanics are light compared with those of any other [illegible], and while laborers do command far better wages than in the States east, there is a want of this class of workingmen, especially in the grain harvest season, from July to October.

The mail and express accommodations throughout Oregon are quite ample, and each supply daily communication between all the principal towns within the State, and between these and the States and the Territories.

Churches and church houses and [illegible] of learning, of high grades, and free or public schools, are established in every city, town and settlement. Almost every Christian denomination has its churches or meeting houses, and the Jews their synagogues, and there are colleges, academies, seminaries and high schools under the especial care of Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Roman Catholics, Unitarians and Jews, for the education and moral training of boys and girls, of youths and young ladies.

Of physicians, surgeons, dentists, of lawyers and other professional men, there is—to use an Oregon expression—a multitude. In fact the professions are overdone—of physic for the lack of patients by reason of the extraordinary healthfulness of the country, and of law, because the people are inclined to compromise difficulties of a civil nature rather by neighborly arbitration than in courts of law, and the criminal calendar of the whole State is, perhaps, the smallest of any in the Union.

In the matter of manufactories and similar enterprises Oregon has pursued the slow and very sure policy in past years, and if she seemingly has departed from that within the year just passing and taken up the more go ahead style, it is not because her people have been lured from the pursuit of substantial enterprises by the glittering attractions of speculators, but simply because the unprecedented progress of the development of her great and many resources has actually demanded the surprising advancement noted, and which has been fully sustained in every particular by the gratifying exhibits of wholesome prosperity that have accompanied these various enterprises. It is a noteworthy fact in connection with this subject, that there has never occurred a failure nor an abandonment of any important undertaking in Oregon, and that in no instance has there happened a failure of any large commercial house, of any banking establishment, of any capitalist, nor of any incorporation or individual, whose business was of such nature as to cause insolvency or disaster to any other house, or a material loss to the community generally. And yet, Oregon has her banks, local and National, her large steam navigation corporations, ocean shipping companies, woolen factories, linseed oil mills, iron works, engine and machine shops and foundries capable of turning out the heaviest work, ship yards in which handsome river steamers and large coasting vessels are built, and various other incorporations and considerable enterprises—to say nothing of her numerous flouring mills, some of which will vie with the best in any other State, and the flour from which—as the Imperial, the Standard, the Magnolia, Vaughn's, and the Salem mills—has won first rank in the New York market, under, shame to say the name of "California flour." And finally, Oregon has now the first twenty miles of the line of railway completed, and the engines and cars running, which is to be continued through the whole length of the State, thence through California to connect with the Central Pacific road, and thus place us in direct communication with our sister States of the Pacific, and the States across the Rocky Mountains.

There is an Insane Asylum for the care and safe keeping of that class of unfortunates, and so are there hospitals in several counties for the benefit and treatment of the indigent sick or crippled, but as the number of this class of patients is uncommonly small in Oregon, in contrast with that of other States, these public institutions cause only nominal tax upon the people. And as a general rule, the same remark will apply to the county jails. Nor is the State Penitentiary a crowded institution, because the administration of justice is generally so thorough that the evil disposed are awed from the commission of crimes in many cases, and consequently flagrant offenses and heinous felonies are comparatively infrequent. Burglaries and highway robberies and arson are exceedingly rare, and a [illegible] robbery has never occurred in the State. The preservation of peace and good order is so easily maintained in all the chief towns, that such a thing as "a police force" is not known, and Portland, with its population of thousands, its wharves teeming with sea going men and its streets trod by persons of almost every nationality, is under the surveillance of a police organization so small as to excite the remark and often the ridicule of visitors from the States on the other side of the continent, and yet this force, small as it is, is ample for the duty it is required to fulfill. Without sumptuary or stringent laws to restrain intemperance or enforce observance of the Sabbath, throughout Oregon drunkenness is rarely to be witnessed, and Sunday is everywhere observed as that day of rest and of religious devotion which the best moral sentiment of the Christian world commands. And there is not a poor house in the State because one is not needed.

There are lyceums, debating clubs and libraries for the entertainment and improvement in study of youths and men in the interior towns, and the Library Association of Portland, though in the very infancy of existence, has already, by the generosity of a leading public citizen, W. S. Ladd, the handsomest and [illegible] hall in the State, and a collection of books, paintings, periodicals, &c., which does infinite credit to the liberality of the donors, to the pride of the members, and to the judgment of the officers who selected all which constitutes and adorns the library.

And in speaking of Portland, it is well to chronicle the fact that while she has only the population of a large town as reckoned in the older States, she has all the improvements, conveniences and elements of a city. Clear, pure, cold, delicious water is brought from mountain springs to a great reservoir in the suburbs of the city, and is thence distributed in mains and small pipes through the whole place into the buildings wherever required, [illegible] for all uses at very low rates. Gas lights up the streets at night at reasonable cost to the public, and is supplied to the stores and dwellings, hotels, theaters and every class of public buildings at fair charges. Good hotels, halls of amusement, elegant stores for the display of goods and wares, whole blocks of handsome business houses, beautiful and attractive residences in the prettiest and grandest styles of modern architecture, imposing looking Churches, and a splendid Odd Fellows' Hall which would be a credit to any city of the [illegible], [illegible] of Portland, commodious, extensive and well built and tightly roofed wharves, [illegible] the grand wharf and warehouses of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company which has no equal in San Francisco nor a superior in any city on the Atlantic, a Custom House which, [illegible] appearance and architectural display is not surpassed in the east, and fine public squares eligibly located in different parts of the city, are among the objects which invite the attention [illegible] the praise of the [illegible] from the [illegible].

The city enjoys the protection of a large, thoroughly equipped [illegible] fire department of [illegible] steam and hand fire engines and hook and ladder [illegible], each company [illegible] its fire towers, and [illegible] cisterns are so located as to afford a plentiful supply of water at a moment's warning. But fires are exceedingly rare, and in the period covering the whole existence of the city there has never occurred a conflagration of more than two or three buildings at any one time.

A beautiful drive extends from Portland to the White House, several miles through the [illegible] and all the way in sight of the Willamette river.

And in one particular all will agree, come from whatever section of the Union they may. It is that Portland has the best paved and cleanest streets of any town or city which can be named. The principal business thoroughfares are [illegible] and a system of curbing [illegible] grading of the streets laid out regularly as those of Philadelphia, with blocks all of a size, wide, uniform sidewalks, and shade or ornamental trees planted along the borders of the streets—all combine to merit for Portland the praise of being not only the best paved, but one of the prettiest, neatest, most tastefully planned cities in the country.

To give an idea of the trade the city enjoys a mere mention of its advantages is requisite. Situated on the Willamette fourteen miles above where that river pours its waters into the mighty Columbia, somewhat more than one hundred miles above the Columbia river bar, it is reached by and is the port for the ocean line of steamships which run weekly between San Francisco and Oregon, the weekly line of steamers from Victoria and Puget Sound, and the numerous sailing vessels from full rigged ships to coasting schooners which engage in carrying freight on special charter from the Atlantic, European or Asiatic ports, the Hawaiian Islands, California or British Columbia. It is the port also from whence start and to which come the regular daily steam packets carrying passengers, freight, mails and express to and from Astoria and intermediate points on the Columbia river, connecting with the mail and passenger stages from Puget Sound via Olympia overland to Monticello in Washington Territory; to and from Fort Vancouver and Cascades, the Dalles and Umatilla and Wallula on the upper Columbia, from whence connection is made overland by daily mail stages with Idaho and Montana and Utah Territories, and thence to the other States by railroad; to and from Oregon City and thence on the upper Willamette and the Yamhill rivers, and to and from which point also go and come the small steamer which plies on the Tualatin river toward the Coast range of mountains. The Oregon Steam Navigation Company, of which Capt. Ainsworth is President, controls the steam traffic of the Columbia from its mouth to Wallula, a distance of nearly [illegible] miles, and thence up Snake river to Lewiston, Idaho, at the confluence of the Clearwater, 186 miles above Wallula, and also that between Monticello on the Cowlitz and Portland. The traffic from Portland always on the Willamette and Yamhill and Tualatin rivers is controlled by the People's Transportation Company, A. A. McCully President.

The climate of Oregon has been so frequently misrepresented by transient visitors and reckless tourists that justice requires a reference to the subject here. The nick name of "Web foot Nation" has been applied to the State as if to indicate a condition of perpetual rain. The truth is that the annual rainfall of Oregon is much less than that of almost any State in the West or in the Atlantic States, that it is equal only to a very few, and is greater only than that of California and Nevada, and, perhaps, one or two other States. Judged from a California standpoint Oregon is a wet country, but judged by the standard of Illinois, New York, or most of the States, she stands very fairly in the general average. Rain is scarcely known during the summer months, or "dry season" in California. In Oregon there happen occasional, yet quite rare showers during the summer months, and in the winter months, notwithstanding our high latitude, snow seldom falls to lay beyond a few days, while rain may be called the staple wintry element. But there is no more healthful, more invigorating, more delightful climate under the sun than is to be enjoyed in Oregon during the spring, summer and autumn months. The hottest days are then succeeded by refreshingly cool nights so that overheated and exhausted nature can be assured sweet repose and sound sleep. There are no dense, chilling, penetrating fog damps during those months, no cold, ague provoking rains, but instead there comes, once or twice each month, grateful showers to prevent the surface soil from parching, to purify the heated atmosphere and refresh all animated nature. And it is remarkable that in the very hottest middays ever known there has never occurred a case of fatal sun stroke in the State, nor it may be added such a thing as hydrophobia even in the fiercest of the dog days. The thermometrical range for the whole year will not show anything approximate to the extreme changes which occur in much lower latitudes on the Atlantic coast—and the first case of death from excessive cold weather has yet to be chronicled in Oregon. Indeed, the winter temperature is so uniformly above the freezing range that many farmers and stock raisers never make an effort to house or provide shelter for their cattle during the inclement season, but allow them to graze or browse in the open fields or on the hillsides.

No [illegible] of wind, hurricanes, tornadoes, or gales severe enough to blow down forests, throw down barns or houses, and to devastate lands have ever swept this State. Three or four times since its early settlement by the whites, floods have washed portions of the upper valley and the river bottoms, but the perils from such visitations are every year diminished.

The currency is gold and silver—greenbacks being used mostly for payment of Federal taxes, or to be used for the accommodation of those who prefer to carry them rather than bankers' drafts or checks when going out of the State. But in every day dealings, in all [illegible] marketing and all ordinary transactions, gold and silver coin is the circulating medium. The local banks—two in Portland and one in Salem—are sound and bear high reputation not only in Oregon but all over the Pacific coast, and at the great money marts of the East. The ordinary rate of interest is from ten to twelve per cent., the former being the rate fixed by statute. There is very little county scrip at all, as nearly every county is entirely free from debt, and the State is in the same wholesome financial condition. The aggregate taxes—State, county and school—will not exceed fifteen mills on each dollar, and the State and county governments are administered on an exceedingly economical scale. The Constitution prohibits State banks of issue, and the First National Bank of Portland is the only institution in the State which has authority to issue bank notes.

Of the scenery of Oregon it is not the purpose of this article to dwell. This task has been quite amply and very well performed by the tourists who have visited the State during the past few years, albeit they have done little else. It will suffice here to remark that whether it be of lovely landscapes, charming vales, magnificent mountain views, picturesque hill and lake scenes, grand and rugged river scenery, majestic snow peaks, or the gorgeous sunrise and sunset splendors, neither [illegible] Hudson, the St. Lawrence, [illegible] nor the valleys or hills, the mountains nor the snowy summits of the famed scenic regions of the country beyond the Mississippi can excel in all these forms and phases of nature's beauty and wonders the views presented on the Columbia and throughout this State, and we simply repeat what the tourists of the world admit in this respect.

As places of summer resort for the rich to pleasure, and for the million to taste the joys of a few days snatched from toil, or for the invalid to seek relief from [illegible] impaired by disease, there are the noted Clatsop Plains near the mouth of the Columbia, or the Yaquina Bay, seaward from Corvallis, at either of which bathing and a view of the broad Pacific can be had, and where sea baths, oysters, [illegible] fishing, hunting [illegible] are to be enjoyed; the Warm Springs of the Molalla, or the [illegible] Mountains, the waters of which are [illegible] for bathing and not unpleasant to the taste, [illegible].

In a catalogue of the leading and material features, characteristics and resources of Oregon, [illegible] although imperfect [illegible] That which the reader of other sections [illegible] might possibly purpose immigrating hither [illegible] perhaps more than anything else [illegible] a reference to the [illegible] of tilling and [illegible] satisfactory manner.

A large portion of the Willamette, Yamhill, Umpqua, [illegible] and Illinois valleys, which contain the best farming lands in the State, were taken up by early settlers under the donation law of 1850, and as subsequently amended and extended in 1853 and 1854, by which each settler in good faith and who had himself occupied the land for one year, was entitled to 640 acres if he was a married man, or to 320 acres if a single man. By amendments this law was changed that any person could purchase after four years of residence either 640 or 320 acres agreeably to the condition he occupied, as married or single, at the rate of $1.25 per acre. The law expired in 1855 and since that time the lands taken up by settlers have been occupied and granted agreeably to the general pre-emption and homestead laws of the United States. Thus, in the portions of Oregon above mentioned a large proportion of the land is held subject to the old donation laws, in tracts of 640 and 320 acres, and unfortunately for the welfare of the commonwealth these large tracts are owned in many instances by a class of men who seem to think the chief end of life is to obtain all the land possible, and [illegible] rent or sow [illegible] either of their fellow men, and to cultivate only so much of all their vast possessions as will afford them a bare support from year to year—say a patch of from thirty to fifty, or in rare cases one hundred acres. It is the avaricious grasping of rich lands by this class of men, and their dog in the manger conduct in retaining every foot they located or have become possessed of, which has done so much to prevent a healthful and needed immigration here of the farming working class of the old States, and in this and other important respects, retarded the growth, injured the prospects and weighed heavily down almost every beneficial enterprise and project for the development of the natural wealth of the State and the advancement of her citizens in the great onward march which so signally characterizes the American people, as foremost in all that invites blessings, creates wealth, assures plenty, and aims at securing contentment among every class.

Fortunately on the other hand however, it is manifest that, while this greedy and stubborn landocracy will neither sell nor lease their extensive surplus lands, the possession of them all must before long, in the economy of nature, fall into other hands—heirs or assigns—by reason of old age and infirmities which must inevitably carry off these lingerers on the last step of the down-hill of life. And in that not far off period, a marked change will ensue in the improvements and benefits of agriculture. There are notwithstanding these difficulties just recited, many available opportunities presented for the benefit of the skillful, industrious, frugal farmer in the valleys named, and in other equally fertile, but more recently developed sections—in the Klamath and Goose Lake regions, and in the extensive valleys of Eastern Oregon. Farms with improvements of fair character, can be bought for from $8 to $20 per acre—tracts of from fifty to hundreds of acres and which will readily yield from twenty five to forty bushels to the acre of grain, or the equivalent in other crops. Or good farms can be procured on rent, at easy terms, by those who can give satisfactory guarantee of worth, and of skill in farm pursuits.

To working men who prefer to seek employment in the cities, at trades or other occupations, Oregon presents a field not surpassed on the coast. Wages run from $2 50 to $5 00 per day for mechanics and artisans, and laboring men are paid $2 to $2 50 per day, or $25 to $35 per month and board. Board is had at the best hotels for $10 per week, and at good boarding houses at from $6 down to $4 per week. Comfortable dwellings with snug garden spots, can be rented in Portland at from $15 to $30 per month, and persons who desire to practice economy can manage fairly at an aggregate cost, for rent, fuel, water, lights and everything, of from $50 to $100 per month, agreeably to the number they have in family. Fire wood is cheap—only $3 50 to $5 per cord for fir, ash, or oak, delivered at the house. Clothing, dry goods, and all kinds of articles for wear, for household use, for consumption, or service in any respect, are to be had in the retail stores at very reasonable rates. The woolen fabrics of Oregon manufacture are equal to any in market, for service as well as appearance, and are better adapted to the requirements of the inhabitants than the fabrics brought from abroad.

Oregon wants and her citizens cordially invite immigration—not of the idle or reckless or non producing classes. There are from good to most alluring attractions here for both capital and labor—for the man of useful enterprise who brings his wealth of gold, or for the man whose only capital is his mechanical skillfulness, his knowledge of the useful arts, his craft in all the branches of farming, or his strong arms and willing disposition to honorably earn the bread he eats by the labor he can readiest exert. To any of these we say, Oregon offers conspicuous advantages. She has here in Portland a soundly organized and admirably conducted Immigration Aid Society, whose officers and members are prominent among the most substantial, the oldest, the most enterprising and best informed of our citizens, and of this society any who wish general or special information respecting any portion of the State or of any capital or labor interests can receive ready answers upon application either in person or by letter.

They have a man in jail in Marshall county, Mississippi, and don't know how he got there or why he was sent. What is worse, he won't come out until the next Court apologizes for the mistake.

One Hundred Million Chinese

Of all the [illegible] and senseless clap-trap, [illegible] the most foolish [illegible] to alarm [illegible] the Republican party [illegible] Chinese [illegible] Democracy [illegible] want to be overrun by [illegible] Chinese [illegible] Whenever a Democrat speaks of Chinese immigration [illegible] seems to be the favorite figure. They never fall below that. "One hundred millions" rolls out so large and round and filled with such terrific import [illegible] calculated to inspire terror in the minds of unthoughtful readers that a Democratic editor or orator would as soon dispense with his favorite Chinese cook as to bate a single Chinaman from that figure.

We have often wondered if these gentlemen ever gave a thought to the question of immigration from China—its past history, present status and prospective magnitude—if they ever thought how ridiculous they make themselves when prating to intelligent readers and hearers about their country being inundated by a hundred million of leprous heathen. Let us see by the light of facts and figures how real is the picture they hold up to be shuddered at. In twenty years the population of the United States has been increased by 90,000 Chinese immigrants, or at the rate of 4,500 a year, or as one to seventy-four arrivals from Great Britain and Germany, alone, in a single year. At this rate, the "one hundred millions" would arrive in the brief period of 22,222 years! But we will suppose that immigrants from China may come more rapidly for a few years than during the last twenty, though really we can see no particular inducement greater than has all along existed. Allow that each steamship from China will bring 500, and that there will be arrivals by sail vessels sufficient to make twenty ship-loads of 500 each per year. A little arithmetic will show that to land "one hundred millions," there will be required only 200,000 voyages across the Pacific ocean, and that the "one hundred millions" would be landed here in just 10,000 years! The prospect is truly horrifying. The Laboring Lawyers have only to wait 10,000 years to see their most fearful predictions verified!

Meanwhile we may as reasonably premise that immigration from other countries and the natural increase of our own population will go on as usual. If then, in eighty years, we grow from three to forty millions, our Caucasian population will be at the end of the ten thousand years, about 5,000,000,000, in which multitude the Chinaman could scarcely be found. There wouldn't be enough of them to furnish the Laboring Lawyers with cooks and wood-sawyers. We have introduced these figures, which, after all, solve only [illegible] problems, to show how nonsensical is the twaddle about "hundreds of millions" or millions of any number of Chinese immigrants into America.

If any serious attention be paid to the laws of migration it will be seen that in no case in history has the voluntary emigration from any country amounted to more than an exceedingly small fraction of the entire population. In the case of European migration to the United States, the total number of departures in a period of eighty years is only in the proportion of one to over forty of the entire population in 1860. In this case, too, the emigration has been large beyond any known precedent. Supposing the Chinese to migrate hither in the same proportion, for eighty years, the total number of arrivals would be about 10,500,000.

But there is another law of an important character which governs migration—the same as that which operates in commerce—the law which regulates the supply according to the demand. In the case of European immigrants, a very large proportion of them came here to remain, to become owners and tillers of the soil and to engage in the various industrial enterprises which would make them possessors of property permanently attached to our country, to be men and masters instead of servants, to become citizens and part and parcel of the people, their nativity being sunk in their new nationality. These were the attractions hither—the demand which has kept the supply flowing toward us. In the case of the Chinese, the case is different. Within the twenty years in which we have had them here, they have never shown any single instance of an intention or desire to fix themselves to the soil, or to become assimilated with our people as do the people of other nations. They have done no act from which could be deduced an intent on their part to merge themselves in our nationality or to attach themselves permanently in any way to the country. They are simply adventurers, attracted by our gold mines and the demand for higher wages for menial labor than they get at home. Consulting the most reliable sources of information we are satisfied that no Chinaman ever leaves the empire without an intent to return again. The migratory streams flow each way. The attractions hither—the demand for Chinese immigrants—are of a temporary and restricted character. Whenever the gold mines shall be worked out, as they must be in a few years, and when the demand for Chinese labor grows less as it must in time, then Chinese immigration must fall off in exact proportion. If we may put any reliance in the laws of migration which have always been found as well defined and established as any other law of nature or philosophy, we may set it down that we shall never receive more immigrants from any source than will be found useful to the country.

But as we have shown the Laboring Lawyers have not consulted the figures, and we may fairly presume that they have not consulted the laws and rational probabilities of international exchange of population. Their fearful predictions are mere senseless ravings, uttered for no better purpose than to alarm ignorant minds for temporary political effect.

Editorial Notes

A Chicago newspaper writer has been dishing up a rather ghastly table of statistics in relation to suicides in that city during the past year. According to his statement the Germans have been most self-destructive, the suicides among them numbering nineteen. The Irish come next—eleven. Then Americans—nine, and Englishmen four. The causes of suicide are not given with any relation to the nationalities of the victims, though a large per cent is attributed in some way to the use of drinks. It might be curious to know the relative influences of lager beer, straight whisky and alf-and-alf in persuading people to cut their throats or blow out their brains.

In another place in this morning's paper will be found a lengthy article on Oregon, giving an [illegible] written by an Oregonian of long [illegible] and who has had unusual facilities for learning facts concerning the matters of which he writes. We have often been addressed by parties in the East who want us to tell them all about Oregon [illegible] newspaper [illegible] answer very [illegible] and this day's issue of the OREGONIAN will be a valuable [illegible] friends in the other [illegible]

It appears that the "sugar frauds" in New York, concerning which so much has been lately said, were mostly perpetrated under the Administration of Andrew Johnson and altogether by his appointees. The facts are that soon after General Grant came into office complaints were made to Secretary Boutwell by men from Boston and elsewhere to the effect that importers at New York were in some way getting favors which enabled them to undersell those of other cities. He directed an investigation on every point raised and this has been going on all summer. The sugar question came up in August. The frauds were reported as having taken place in two ways—by under weighing and under sampling—that is by passing sugar at low grade when it was of high quality. The amount of the swindle is very large, but not yet fully ascertained. It is, perhaps, unnecessary to add that all the other frauds lately unearthed at New York were perpetrated also by Johnson's appointees.

If the Oregon Knights of the Horny Hand really desire to promote the interests of laborers they cannot do better than to take a lesson from the Colored National Labor Convention, which seems to have avoided being embroiled in political discussions and to have steered clear in its management of the baleful influences of political tricksters, hacks, and Laboring Lawyers. As evidence of the success of this non-political policy we may cite what has been achieved by the Baltimore association of colored ship builders. In his address to the late Convention, Mr. Isaac Myers said: "The white ship carpenters had expelled the colored ship-carpenters from the ship-yards. The result was, they established a ship-yard of their own, and now they have at work two hundred and fifty colored men and as many as fifty white men, some of them Democrats and some of the very ones who clubbed the brains out of a few of the colored ship-carpenters, who now lie in their graves in the State of Maryland. He believed in thus making friends of their enemies." The Laboring Lawyers may yet find out that labor problems are not political any more than are those of capital, though it may be a stretch of charity to concede to them that amount of capacity and gumption. The only certain way to ensure the destruction of the interests of either labor or capital is to thrust them into politics. They are both worthy the patronage of any party, and no party can afford to ignore them, but in their natures they are private and social. Their solution depends upon delicate involutions far more profound than political generalizations.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

There is talk of a union of all the railroads between Boston and Bangor into one company.

The foreign imports of Boston, from January 1, 1869, to January 1, 1870, will amount to over $50,000,000, thus making it the second commercial city in the Union.

The Virginia Enterprise says in reference to Rockwell's Chinese bill that "the history of State legislation nowhere furnishes the suggestion of a more inhuman and atrocious measure."

Mrs. Cady Stanton claims to have been of great service to her fellow travelers on her recent journeys, by the energetic manner in which she attended to their comfort, including good ventilation.

The amount realized from last year's cotton crop was $163,000,000. It is roughly estimated from the incomplete returns of this year's crops that the exports of cotton alone will foot up $200,000,000 in 1870.

The Grand Lodge of Masons of Texas at its last session called especial attention to the articles in the Constitution forbidding habitual drunkenness, swearing and gambling, and it has made it the especial duty of the District Deputy Grand Lecturers, in their visits to inquire particularly into this thing, and a Lodge that permits her members to practice them is to have its charter arrested.

There is authority for saying that the Postmaster General will, during the present session of Congress, recommend legislation looking towards the adoption of the Postal Telegraph system by the Postoffice Department. Senator Ramsey, Chairman of the Postal Committee of the Senate, is a very warm advocate of this plan, and believes the day is not far distant when the Government will adopt it. There is authority for saying also that the subject would have secured favorable attention in the Message but for an oversight in the President.

At Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, as the gun for reveille and evening roll call is fired each day, a dog belonging to the post and known as "Artillery Jack" takes his position beside it, superintends the operation of loading and firing with the most assiduous attention, and when the match is applied leaps with a yelp through the smoke to catch the ball which he firmly believes has been discharged. This he eagerly hunts for around the parade ground, and when disappointed runs back to the gun, looks into the muzzle, hangs his head and walks away seeming puzzled and disgusted, but not hopeless.

Letters from Mr. Hazlett, editor of the Mountaineer, who has been some time [illegible] state that he will be at home again in a few days.

The Statesman says Mr. I. R. Moores has received lately [illegible] three days [illegible] from parties in the Eastern States for seeds of the Oregon flowering currant.

The Mountaineer says: The boat on the upper river stopped running on Wednesday the 2[illegible] inst. Passengers will now leave the Dalles by John Hailey's line of stages every morning.

Last Saturday evening, says the Salem Statesman, while the colored people of this place were engaged in celebrating their Emancipation day, the residence of Jesse Williams, a colored man, was broken open and robbed. Williams and his wife are an aged couple who came to Oregon long since with Gen. Ward. They had by hard work and economy laid up nearly thirty dollars in coin which was taken by the thief after ransacking the house and doing some damage. The money was concealed in a bandbox. The thief entered by a window. Nothing seems to have been taken but money.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 5, 1870

CITY.

LIVELY TIMES.—Business in the Recorder's Court was somewhat dull during the last weeks of the old year, but with the ushering in of 1870 matters have considerably revived During Monday and Tuesday of this week the following cases are noted:

First came Chas Dobel charged with having "invested" the insignificant sum of $7 00, for which he was consigned to Jailor Ward for safe keeping during a period of 30 days

Secondly, James Coakley did not come, but a small sum of filthy lucre, he had previously left with the Recorder, was forfeited unto the State of Oregon, and goes to swell the vast amount which she has locked up in her safe

Chas. Littlefield responded to two charges, one that he had "taken away the coat" of some one who had not given him a cloak, the other that he had appropriated a gun belonging to another to his own use He stops in the basement of the court house for 30 days on each charge

Jim Smith, put in an appearance to answer the accusation of being intoxicated and boisterous on the street. His exchequer having suffered entire depletion, he was unable to liquidate a small charge made against him on the Recorder's docket and the Marshal was requested to furnish him board and lodging for two days at the city's expense.

Indian Jack, having made his boast that he could "get whisky anywhere," and having evidently got it somewhere, and shown signs of an abuse of that commodity, and further, not being in funds to make a small contribution to the City Treasury, was in for 48 hours' meditation at the calaboose.

Susie Brown "got in a fight" and had to "shell out" a V and costs.

Mathews, Murray and Sorax were invited to meet His Honor this morning at nine o'clock and stand an examination of the little affair on the [illegible] night before last

AURORA BOREALIS —One of the most brilliant of these northern lights ever witnessed in this latitude was seen on Monday morning last from half-past one to three o'clock There seemed at first a bank of fog formed like an arch, in the north, extending over about 40 degrees of the horizon. Presently the rays of light began to shoot upwards, singly or to issue in groups from portions of the arch in convergent lines The entire northern hemisphere at times was lit up in splendor, the rays of light assuming brilliant red, pale yellow, orange and purple tints, and presenting at once a most grand and beautiful spectacle These lights are said to be produced by electricity in the air, and are from the same cause as the [illegible] showers or shooting stars They were formerly regarded with much superstition, the Romans and Greeks considering them portentous of great events and imagine that they saw in them

"Fierce, fiery warriors fight upon the clouds,
In ranks and squadrons and right form of war."

The one seen Monday morning afforded about as much light as the moon when half full, and several persons mistook it, at first, for some great conflagration in a northerly direction.

PORTLAND BRIDGE.—We extract the following from the Washington correspondence of the Eugene Journal in reference to the bill in Congress giving the consent of the United States to the building of a bridge across the river at this place "The bill provides that the bridge shall be so constructed and built as not to obstruct, impair, or injuriously modify the navigation of the river; and in order to secure a compliance with these conditions, the corporation, association, or company proposing to erect the same, previous to commencing the construction of the bridge, shall submit to the Secretary of War a plan of the bridge, with a detailed map of the river at the proposed site of the bridge and for a distance of a mile above and below the site, exhibiting the depths and currents at all points of the same, together with all other information touching said bridge and river as may be deemed requisite by the Secretary of War to determine whether the said bridge, when built, will conform to the prescribed conditions of the bill, not to obstruct, impair, or injuriously modify the navigation of the river And the Secretary of War may detail an officer to superintend the survey and examination of said river with a view to said location."

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Late in the afternoon of Monday, R. G. Clark, an employee in the saw mill of Hayden & Smith was working at the [illegible] cutting saw, when a heavy board or slab was caught by some part of the machinery and thrown with great force against his person. So violent was the blow, it striking him in the region of the stomach, that it caused a rupture of some of the internal organs from which it was evident from the first he could not recover. Two of our best physicians were immediately called, and did all in the power of man to relieve him He lived though, in great pain, until last evening, and died at about 8 o'clock The funeral will take place at the residence of Mr Hayden corner Third and Market streets, this afternoon

EXCURSION TO ASTORIA —Captain Smith has tendered the use of his bran new side wheel steamer, the Mary Bell, for a grand excursion and cotillion party to Astoria next week. She will leave this city at 8 A M on Tuesday and return by 4 P. M next day, remaining at Astoria over night. The Mechanics' Brass Band has been engaged, and committees of arrangement appointed, from which we infer that the affair will be one of great enjoyment to all participating Music will be furnished for those on board desiring "to trip the light fantastic" and a grand ball will be given at Astoria on Tuesday night to attend which a free invitation has been extended to the excursionists.

[illegible].—Warrants were issued out of Recorder Anderson's Court yesterday morning for the arrest of four men, named Mathews, Murray Sorax and Thompson, who are charged with assaulting one of their comrades, all the parties being sailors on board the ocean steamer now in port. HELEN ANGIER.—Some of the parties in Oregon who shipped wheat for Liverpool by the Helen Angier, have received notice of her arrival at her destination in good condition Her cargo of wheat sold at the highest prices the market allowed, the article being generally at a low figure at the time. As usual, Oregon failed to get due credit for a good commodity of her own production. The wheat, although raised, every grain of it, on Oregon soil and shipped direct, sold as California wheat

WHARF BROKEN DOWN —A large quantity of freight has lately been placed upon the wharf of Messrs Stephens & Moffatt, at the foot of Main street, and last night the structure gave way and tumbled down with quite a crash The wharf was built last summer and was as good as new being thought by some to be as substantial as any in the city The breakdown occurred after dark and we were unable to obtain all the particulars or the full extent of the damages

We accept with resignation the reopening of the Alabama case An article from the London Times on that exciting topic will be transmitted three times every week by the cable for the next six months The whole subject will be considered over again, If any new light might be expected to be thrown on the controversy, the infliction might be borne with something approaching to serenity, but with the experience of the past before us, we dare not indulge in any such hope. We shall hear nothing but that "England, to a certain extent, was justified in what she did, you know; but if there is anything to pay, she is ready with the cash, provided whatever little bills she may have are attended to at the same time." On the other hand, the response will be "You have acted very badly in the whole of that business. If you do not want to pay for the damage you have done, it is all right There will be an opportunity to take it out of you at one time or another" There must be sincerity on both sides before an irritating question of this kind can be settled, and we are afraid that there has not been much of that so far in the controversy —Alta.

Cassius M Clay, who has not been prominently before the public recently, made a speech in the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Convention last week, He said he could not withhold his sympathy from the cause, although he thought he had made enough sacrifices "in family, reputation, and interest" The suggestion that a sacrifice of family and reputation is the necessary result of identification with the Woman's Rights people is the severest thing yet said about him,

The Cable announces that Victor Hugo and Louis Blanc have written Peabody letters, but the text of them must await transmission by mail. Hugo never misses a chance for writing a letter and the Peabody pretext was sure to be availed of Hugo's epistles are his most characteristic productions—exclamatory, profoundly obscure, epigrammatic, single-sentenced paragraphed Their author is equally ready to eulogize a vagabond, a convict, or a world-famous benefactor

Close the left eye and look steadily with the right at the cross on the paper held a foot distant from you, Now move the paper slowly toward the eye, which must be kept steadily fixed upon the cross, on a certain point the dot will disappear but as the paper is brought still closer it will be brought to light again, It results from optical principles. How many of the pupils and students in our public schools can explain this

The North German Correspondent mentions a new aparatus for saving the shipwrecked A small gun throws the projectile, which forms an anchor when it strikes, so that a connection may be established with the land without any assistance from the shore

The Petersburg Index bids farewell to the old men of the Old Dominion, and turns to welcome the young Virginians, who are hereafter to be the law makers and leaders

EVERY BODY TAKE NOTICE —We wish to get our business all squared up by the 1st of January, and therefore desire all those who are indebted to us, to present their bills, and all those to whom we are indebted to present their accounts before that date, for settlement Short settlements make long friends

We are still selling and manufacturing clothing at the most reasonable figures, Give our establishment a call —on corner of First and Alder streets—Odd Fellows Temple

BOYS CLOTHING —Another addition to the already large stock of Boys Clothing was received by Kohn & Fishel They are really handsome and all custom made There is nothing more appropriate or more suitable for a Christmas gift to a boy, than one of these handsome suits Kohn & Fishel's stock of clothing cannot be surpassed An examination of their stock will convince all that their stock is the best and at the lowest prices

THE STOCK BOOKS of the Puget Sound Homestead Association are open for subscriptions and the Stock is being rapidly taken Persons desiring Stock have only to apply to the Secretary at No 5 Washington street, or to Mr Wm H Conklin Canvassing Agent for the Association The Association have purchased 2,314 acres of land located at seven very important points on the Sound that some of them must be at or near the terminus of the great Northern Pacific Railroad in which event they would almost immediately become of almost incalculable value This is divided into three hundred shares at $100 per share, payable in monthly installments of $5 per month Each shareholder has an equal undivided interest in all the lands The terms are so easy that persons of limited means may invest money that is sure to increase ten to one hundred fold within three or four years

G. A. R —All members belonging to Post No 21 G A R, Dept Col, are requested to meet in the third story of Capt Gillman's brick building near the Post office, on the evening of the 5th inst at 7 1/2 o clock for the purpose of transacting business of importance

Let not Prejudice usurp your Reason.

It is a fact that in the minds of many persons a prejudice exists against what are called patent medicines, but why should this prevent your trying a good article that has such an array of testimony to support it as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS! Physicians prescribe it, why should you discard it? Judges, usually considered men of talent, have used and do use it in their families; why should you reject it? Let not your prejudice usurp your reason to the everlasting injury of your health If you are sick and require a medicine, try these Bitters

When the bodily energies are worn out by anxiety and need a stimulant this is the best that can be taken It is tempered and modified by hygienic herbs and roots, which prevent it from fevering the blood, and hence it does not produce a mere temporary excitement to be followed by injurious reaction, but communicates a permanent potency to the entire vital organization Some of its herbal constituents are slightly soporific, so that in cases where sleeplessness are one of the accompaniments of nervous disease, a dose of it taken towards bedtime will tend to produce quiet and refreshing slumber. For palpitation of the heart, tremors, hysterics, fainting fits, general restlessness and the causeless fears and distressing fancies to which ladies are especially subject under certain morbid condition of mind and body peculiar to their sex, the Bitters will be found the most agreeable and certain of all counter irritants

The constitutionally nervous may readily keep their infirmity in constant check by the daily use of this healthful vegetable tonic and those who have "shattered their nerves," as the phrase is, either by imprudent indulgence or undue physical or intellectual labor, will find in this vitalizing elixir a prompt restorative.

The undersigned who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions the sale of which daily increases The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise which commands here and in the markets of the interior a relatively higher price excites the cupidity of some manufacturers and every day he sees increasing the number of those who by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public palming upon them their inferior products for the genuine G VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters Nevertheless buyers should be forewarned and placed on their guard against this practice.

Was not a Candidate

[illegible] charge of having torn down a placard bear[illegible] the following [illegible]

Justice — Why did you tear down the placard?

Prisoner — I tore it down with [illegible]

[illegible]

Prisoner — Sir, I have lived [illegible] years in New York and I have always [illegible] respectable [illegible] being placarded as a candidate for Alderman

Justice — [illegible] What is your name?

Prisoner — [illegible]

Justice — Where do you live?

Prisoner — [illegible] West [illegible] street [illegible] New York [illegible]

Justice — Oh I see. Now this placard means another person, a young man who lives in Abingdon square

Prisoner — No sir. This placard is meant to insult me. There is no other person of my name in the city

Justice — O yes there is. I know this young man and he is a candidate for Alderman

Prisoner — So much the worse for him then. But he's no son of mine. My children are all honest

Finding himself in possession of all the facts the Justice fined the old gentleman fifty cents, and he departed still indignant at the idea of being publicly placarded as a candidate for Alderman. This little incident proves that there is a bright as well as a dark side to every phase of life, and that even in New York there are a few people left who still retain a fair share of decency and self respect.

QUITE SENSIBLE—CONSIDERING!—The Oakland Transcript (Democratic) dilates as follows on the recently introduced bills pretended to be antagonistic to Chinese immigration introduced in the Senate by Lawrence of Mariposa and in the Assembly by Rockwell, who edited the Call in its days of littleness

Before the Legislature waste any time in discussing such bills as those introduced by Rockwell and Lawrence (the first proposing to organize a force of policemen to look especially after the Chinese with all the machinery of Commissioners, special taxes, etc, the latter providing for a license tax upon the white men who employ Chinamen) we would suggest that it would be well to pass an act declaring that neither the Courts of this State nor of the United States have any authority to pass upon the political acts of the Legislature of California, and that all acts relating to the Chinese are political acts. Without some such act as this, the passage of such bills as those introduced by the gentlemen named would be only a farce and the time spent in discussing them would be entirely wasted.

But, seriously, while we will support with all our heart any practical scheme which may be proposed to stop the influx of Chinese we cannot see what the Legislature can do which will be of any avail, further than to appeal to Congress and the public opinion of the Nation. And if it is deemed desirable to put on record an emphatic protest against Chinese immigration in the shape of prohibitory Act, it would seem to us that the proper thing to do would be to pass a single bill reciting the dangers and disadvantages of Chinese immigration, and absolutely prohibiting those people from entering the State. Of course, we could not enforce it any more than we could the special police bills, but as a protest it would be much more manly and dignified, it seems to us, and would be much less calculated to prejudice the view of the question which we, in common with Messrs Rockwell and Lawrence take.

MRS GENERAL GAINES.—This lady, whose history furnishes one of the most remarkable examples of persistency on record is thus alluded to by a Washington corresponded of the Pittsburg Chronicle

Mrs. Gen. Gaines, the distinguished representative of fabulous wealth is residing in Washington and is a daily visitor to the Interior Department. She distributes her attention discriminatingly among the different bureaus, and is by no means an insignificant suitor in behalf of persons who invoke her aid for procuring appointments but her principal interest centres in the Land Office, before which she has a pending claim for two and a quarter miles square of land in the heart of the city of New Orleans and upon which there are streets and avenues lined with costly edifices. This valuable list of property is land ceded to the United States by the Spanish Government for which she claims a patent as the heir of her father Daniel Clark. Mrs Gaines, notwithstanding she has so long been before the public, has a remarkably cheerful disposition and, as she trips about the corridors of the Interior Department the echo of her ringing laugh fairly startles the barnacled representatives of circumlocution. For a lady who has lived for an indefinite number of years in an atmosphere of law, her tenacity in retaining her cheerfulness under difficulties does her credit, but then if the testimony of Inspector Bucket is worth anything hers is "a sex to live and learn from." In her appearance she is exceedingly youthful a circumstance that may be in some degree attributeable to a marvelous exhibition of taste in her exterior decorations. Fancy a jaunty hat surmounting bright golden hair a soft, petite form clad in a rich walking dress and you have the contour of the girl of the period in a distinguished representative of a prior era.

Alexandria, Princess of Wales, has unfortunately contracted a limp from rheumatism and now, as we hear, the large ladies of England have taken to limping too and "halt" is the latest command given by fashion. That the "Alexandria limp" will find its way hither ere long is a thing to be expected and, indeed, it is stated to have already made its appearance on the fashionable promenades of New York. The desired limp is obtained simply by wearing shoes with heels of unequal hight, and the deformity thus produced is no greater than that which characterizes the "Grecian band." The fashion of course will lead to a modification of most of our present dances and the invention of new ones. Lapsided waltzes will have to be devised and in doing the German crutches will probably come to be the proper thing. As the skating season is at hand it would be a [illegible] idea to carry out the Alexandria limp on the ice. We have had ever so many good things on ice already and why not the limp? The girls of the period are capable of acting on any of these suggestions, and they should by all means begin to have their balmorals altered at once, if not their morals.
